How far and how long the power will slip away from the meny to the few, we can't get foresee; but one conclusion is obvious, it these States divida, etronger Governmental are necessary for each in self-defense. The freedom we have enjoyed in this Union must be somewhat abridged, if, indeed, free government is not a feilure altogether. Granting that we could separate in peace, and begin with free institutions, what security have we that anything wilt be per manent? If it be justifiable to break up this Government for such reasons as now exist, how long will any Government stand? How long has any Government existed without greater wrongs inflicted and suffered than we have ever known anything of? We are, however, treated to startling horrors and wrongs that we are to expect, and no ap prehen sions are too irrational to be feit.

Independent of this fundamental law, which we cannot repeal, the same rights would belong to the parties upon the prime cipies of American international law. It will be observed that the Ohie river not only takes its rise and ie nevigable beyond the limits of the State of Kentucky, but it also separates this State from the States of Obio, Inuiana and Iilinois. In these respects it differs from the Keatneky, Green River and other etreams which lie entirely within the limits of the Stata, and are, therefore, the exclusive property of Kentneky. In the negotiations between the Government of the United States and Great Britain, le 1812, in regard to the navigation of the river St. Lawrence, our Government assert-ed and maintained that a navigable river separating two States, or such a river arising in and passing through another, is, by natural right, free and common to the people of the State who inhabit lie shores. t was there affirmed and conceded by our devernment, that if the tributaries of Miseisrippi should be found navigable into the British possessions it would be the right of the British subjects of that province to traverse, free of duty, the river Mississippi, from its mouth to its source. This came principle has been again and again affirmed by our Government, and may be regarded as the law of the American Government. See Wheaton's Law of Nations, pp. 811. 5, 517] This principle, applied to the Ohio river, would make it a river frea by natural tight to the States on both sides. HOPKINSVILLE, KT., August 27th 1858. DE. SHALLENBERGER-Dear Sir : I have to state that your Fever and Ague Antidote is daily growing into favor, and needs no putting to recommend it, as its own merits are sufficient, wherever a trial has been made. I believe it has never failed where the administration has been proceeded with in accordance with the directions. It is a pleasure to sell medicines that meet the expectation of purchasers and give satisaction, and as such I am proud to recommend your Pills.

S. D. RUCK, Physician and Drugglet.

mea_McLean's Strengthening Cordial is receiving the unanimous recommendation of the Press, not only at St. Louis, but all over the country. This remedy is evidently the result of close observation and study. Wherever it has been used it has been recommended with the highest encomiums of praise. Persons can have no conception of its efficacy, without giving it a trial. Once more we warmly recommend this remedy as a superior tonic and alterative.
